Lastly, some, who did not compromise but still to stay with syncing between Outlook and Google services, turned to thirdparty Outlook addins instead. With such addin tools, continuing using Google Calendar service is still possible without paying Google monthly fee. We plan to write 6 articles about 6 addins on the market. Then, you can make comparison and see which one fits you. Free or not free This is one of our main concern on choosing the alternative since Google Calendar Sync used to be free. Other concern is trying a new Outlook addin is a bit risky because we do not know if it will do the job. To me, as long as the replacement can get the job done, I do not mind to pay since I am insured by the software company on tech support when I need help. Let's check out what CompanionLink for Google can do for us. Back in the old days, it provided software of data transfer between PDA and PC. It supports a wide range of hardware and software platforms. Due to this nature, its software title is simple and straight focusing on one service at a time. Like OggSync and gSyncit, it only supports syncing with single Google account. By the way, CompanionLink for Google is a standalone software application rather than an Outlook Addin. First of all, we will perform Google OAuth routine. Typically, choosing default value is fine unless you like to sync all calendars and some of them. Click on Outlook Folders tab to assign Outlook local folder to store entries. Once finished, click on OK. Then, a popup window will ask you to proceed synchronization or not The sync session will first scan entries on both ends before synchronization process. You can also check results on both Google Calendar and Outlook. But, these features are useful. You can study user manual a bit to take advantage of it. The radial selection is single, all or default calendar. For Outlook local folder, you need to find it on another page, which is a bit less intuitive.

However, folder selection method is easier than gSyncit and OggSync. Even with this backward compatibility, I still strongly recommend you use at least Outlook 2013 or 2016. The reason is that Outlook 2010 has minor glitches and is not running as smoothly as Outlook 2013 and 2016. Yet, Outlook 2003 and 2007 had reached the end of their life cycle. Purchase with volume discount is available. A paid remote session support is available upon request. A total of 13 languages can be displayed on its official website for nonEnglish speaking visitors. Users need to get more familiar to properly configure them. When there are hundreds or even thousands of entries, it will take a lot of time. However, there will take some delay before entries created on Outlook will be synced to Google. Outlook 2003 and 2007 can only be installed with v7.0 or earlier. Outlook 2010 to 2016 can be installed with the latest v8.0. Wasting time on skimming through entries is the same as both of them. It provides useful configurable options for users. For trial version, capabilitywise, there is no limitation, but trial period lasts for 14 days. You have enough time to evaluate whether this software tool fulfills your need. Customers on the EU Server can follow the steps outlined below. See this article for information on using Clio Sync with Exchange. This would create a loop of Outlook Google Clio Outlook, which could result in many, many duplicates being created. To avoid uploading personal contacts to Clio and sharing them with your coworkers, you must move them from the default contacts folder to a different folder. A good Microsoft Support article on creating and managing contact folders can be found here. Clio Sync will only sync contacts that are found in the root of the default Contacts folder.

This is true even if you change your default data file after setting up the sync Clio Sync will sync with whichever data file is currently the default. This article describes how to change the default Outlook data file. In order for calendar events to transfer properly there must be something in the Description field of the event. Further troubleshooting steps are available here. No information from Clio will transfer to the Outlook. No records are transferred from Outlook to Clio. To disable synchronizing one type of data, uncheck the box. If no option is checked, no data will be synchronized between Outlook and Clio. The default behaviour is to have deletions propagate both ways, i.e. a record deleted in Clio will be deleted from Outlook and vice versa. If you restart your computer, your data will be synchronized upon the restart, whether you have synchronized that day already or not. Been using palm pilot and now companionlink for 30 years, Its great to be able to support a company as dedicated to its craft and people as they are. There is no other tech support that comes close. This morning I called CL support, and within 1 minute was on the phone with Renee. She immediately understood the problem, walked me through the solution stepbystep and followed up with a detailed email on the issue in case it ever happens again which I doubt it will, thanks to some software updates and settings tweaks she suggested. Immediate response, friendly and engaged service.Thats 5star. And Renee is not the only one. Every time I have called CL Support over the years every time the customer service is exactly the same. Come to think of it, the customer service from Companion Link is 6 or 7star at least, but youll just have to imagine the two extra stars on top of this review. Since then the CompanionLink team has built in pretty much all the pieces I had to have, so now I am fully transitioned to DPC. Between DejaOffice on my handhelds, CompanionLink and DejaOffice PC CRM on my PC, this feels like my dear old Palm Desktop now, with many improved features. Well Done! It syncs well to my Windows MS Outlook and to the cloud. I decided to get the Windows version. It has had several frustrating glitches, but support engineers have been extremely responsive and have been diligent in providing solutions. Judging from my experience with the excellent Android version, and because this is still a new Windows app, I am optimistic that bugs will continue to be worked out.

Despite any hiccups, I am happy with the app. Yes, I am rating this five stars because I am optimistic that it will turn into a really good and useful application just as the Android version has been. Best ever! Not on the fence anymore. Thats not even to mention the dynamic synch with all updates automatically populating all of my devices. Outstanding. Please keep the very useful updates coming. VERY easy to set up it tells you your ip address and network name to put into your device.I called amazon and they didnt know how to register it.Reviewed in the United States on December 29, 2017 I purchased this thinking it was the latest version 5. I later found out from the product web site that version 8 is the latest.Please try again later. Amazon Customer 4.0 out of 5 stars Please try again later. Please try again later. Book Glutton 1.0 out of 5 stars When it doesnt, WATCH OUT I have been using this since June 2012 for my Kindle HD and a couple of Windows 8.1 phones that Ive had. I needed something to sync my Contacts and Calendar to both. I tried Microsoft and gave up on them. Its a shame they cant sync their own softwares data. Anyway, The first problem I had was with DUPLICATES and TRIPLICATES. It was a mess! They opened a support ticket for me. I have wiped DejaCloud several times, recreating it, as well as wiped the data on my devices, with no success. I am currently dealing with another problem. It is truncating FIRST NAMES that have more than one name, like Mary Elizabeth, Ann Marie, Terri Ann, John Paul, Billy Jo, Pastor Bob, Cheap Frank, etc. I enter data this way because this is how they are called. I can begin with a new Outlook file from a good backup, sync oneway Outlook to DejaCloud, wiping it first; then uninstall and reinstall DejaOffice on my phone, choosing to read oneway from DejaCloud and the data appears exactly as it should.

If then I change the settings for both CompanionLink on my PC and DejaOffice on my phone to sync push both ways and automatically, and do something like add two new contacts to my phone and one appointment, I run into trouble. If the changes dont appear right away in Outlook, then I initiate the sync manually from CompanionLink. This is a new problem. It has worked with my Outlook data for the past three years. It worked for 12 years using Nokias PC Suite and then their Nokia Suite on my Nokia phones. They say they cannot recreate or duplicate the problem. Isnt that unbelievable. Im just a user. I supply them with Outlook data. Once their software processes it, I actually loose some of it. Their software is ripping it away. I have literally spent days upon days restoring my data and trying to find workarounds. I have over 1,200 contacts and thousands of calendar entries; but I always had these numbers. Its a big job! Things always worked. I also expect them to work if I am paying for the software. Like I said, the software is great WHEN IT WORKS. When it doesnt, WATCH OUT. It wasnt a simply a guess. You cant always blame bad behaving software on your users, especially when you're dealing with stuff like an Outlook database. So, I signed up for a trial period with AkrutoSync. Their website seemed to promise a lot. However, I did not like the setup process a bit crude! or how it worked with IP addresses 192.168.x.x assigned by the router and its User Interface, but eventually got used to it and bought it. I have not had a problem syncing contacts, calendar, etc.And that's the same data that worked with the old Nokia PC Suite when I was using it. It is worth looking into. Its virtually trouble free, except when the IP Address changes rarely with Netgear. When their business collapses, maybe theyll get the message!Please try again later. Please try again later. Carol Anne Ogdin 3.

0 out of 5 stars Dont buy this product for stability or reliability, youll be sorely disappointed. If you love tinkering with your computer and your Androidinstead of making appointments that you can get to ontime, this is the product for you. If you run a business, dont rely on it.I guarantee youll be disappointed. No significant improvements in Version upgrades. This is software development at its worst, and customer service isunbelievablyworse than that. If youve got it, it can be made to work after a LOT of twiddling and tweaking, and theres absolute NO REASON to upgrade.unless you change your cellphone. Im STILL July, 2018 looking for a reputable company that I can buy a more reliable product from. To their credit, it generally works.after several attempts. To their discredit, theyre a typical small software vendor with few really experienced professionals, in my opinion. Their staff are not particularly friendly, and they simple wont accept anybodys input on what needs to be fixed. I started my career with the venerable RCA 301 computer, introduced in 1960. Assuming that Im just an ignorant teenager playing with their product is no way to treat a paying customer. Im using their longinthetooth version 3018, which hasnt apparently updated for a long time.Please try again later. Please try again later. Baltimore guy 1.0 out of 5 stars The software is not ready for use as it creates multiple entries of a single appointment. The multiple entries are difficult to remove and must be done one at a time on one of your two calendars. After cleaning up the calendar in Google, then delete your Outlook calendar. Then, use CompanionLink to sync one way from your Google calendar to a newly created Outlook calendar. I have spent hours doing this, only to have more duplicates created by CompanionLInk following an update in software to their latest released version. If I had known that their update would create multiple entries, I would not have updated the software.

This software is BAD and will create hours upon hours upon hours of work for you. AVOID. CompanionLinks support personnel are pleasant and professional, but they do not have any answers to avoid the creation of multiple entries. They blame Google for changing its software.Please try again later. Please try again later. TechWrite 5.0 out of 5 stars At the outset, their system was kludgy, sync failures and changes in procedure were frequent, but Companion Link Tech Support always answered my calls promptly and got me going immediately. Nowadays, their technology has improved immensely and things are very different. CompanionLink is now consistent, reliable and simple to use. I recently purchased another CLO account for my wifes iPhone. I use a Galaxy S4 Android, am not an iPhone user myself, and didnt have a clue about setting it up. As usual, CompanionLinks support team answered my call promptly and walked me through the setup. The iPhone syncs only through a wireless network, which is slightly slower than the direct USB sync I use with the Galaxy, where wireless sync is optional. But syncing either way is very quick, and with the iPhone you can sync without a cable wherever you have a wireless LAN. Can you imagine having to catch a business flight and being unable to sync your phone. IMHO, Tech Support is everything. I recently abandoned DropBox after 10 years with a professional account when I attempted to sync a new PC, lost all my work files, and discovered that DropBox had eliminated their phone support. They finally responded to my service ticket after 4 days. Id have been looking for a new job by then if I hadnt duplicated my hard drive the day before. You wont have this problem with CompanionLink!Please try again later. Please try again later. T. Plaski 1.0 out of 5 stars I have all the most recent apps and builds downloaded. It still does not work most of the time.

A tech agent helped me get the sync to work on my new phone but only after trying several times. The sad thing is that I know from experience that I will have the same frustrations every time I try to sync from my PC Outlook to my phone. I do not advise purchasing this app. I have not found anything else either. Guess I will have to get with the times and use gmail for calendar and contacts.not my favorite choice either.Please try again later. Please try again later. Amazon Customer 1.0 out of 5 stars If it worked it would allowed me to sync calendars between my Google calendar on Samsung Android and MS Outlook for Mac a key functionality missing from the marketplace for quite some time. However this product clearly has not been thoroughly tested and at this point Im giving up and asking for my money back. Ive worked with their tech support over the last few months on a half dozen major issues since I first installed, spent many hours capturing and sending logs, describing the various problems, downloading yet another beta version to try out, discovering yet another set of problems with that one etc. etc. Clearly they do not have a handle on their development process. As an IT guy for 30 years I can recognize a development shop in shambles and this is one. They probably dont have enough money to pay for adequate testing. So I would definitely stay away from this high maintenance product.Please try again later. Please try again later.
